Good practices in local youth work

We are looking for tools and best practices

The European Charter on Local Youth Work was launched in June 2019. In order to stimulate and support these discussions the steering group of Europe Goes Local decided to develop an online support material, called "Change makers kit". One feature of the kit is to show the examples of tools and best practices that can stimulate the further development of local youth work. Hence, the tools and practices we are looking for needs to address a specific issue and to be transferable to other contexts.

Tools are practical utensils that are designed to fill a specific function while a best practice is a clearly structured and repeatable routine for carrying out a specific task. Practices often include the use of tools, e.g. if the tool is a deck of cards with ethical dilemmas, the practice is (one possible) routine for using it in a good way.

Do you have a tool or best practice that matches the above description and criteria? Are you interested in sharing it with others? If so, please fill in this short form. After going through the different proposals, the EGL-team will contact those selected to get more detailed information.

YOUTH WORK: THE 'EGER WAY'

Today, we visit Eger, Hungary and talk to Gulyás Barnabás and Huszthy Boglárka about how quality local youth work is implemented locally. In June 2019, Barnabás and Boglárka took part in the 3rd EGL Event in Brussels and presented their local good practices on developing Eger's Youth Action Plan, #TEger project and shared some successful ways of promoting quality youth participation locally. Here is what more they shared with us.

Q: Tell us more about your joint work? Which organizations/institutions you both represent and why is it important to approach your work in collaboration?

A: Barnabas: I started to work with local municipalities to develop and improve their practices related to youth work 5 years ago. That is how we are continuing the collaboration with the Municipality of Eger. I am always more closer to the Northern settlements as I was
